BATES COUNTY FAIR.

Opened Wednesday. Fine Exhibits on Grounds. Big Attendance Anticipated.

The annual Bates County Fair opened Wednesday morning instead of Tuesday, as advertised, having been postponed on account of the severe storm Monday night, which delayed opening preparations and made the track impossible to use.

Entries in all departments are many and good and from the standpoint of exploiting the county's resources, the fair promises to be a decided success.

High class free attractions are on the ground and amusements are plentiful.

Many fine racing horses are here and the public is promised some excellent racing.

With favorable weather for the remainder of the week it is believed that the attendance will break all records.

A Pleasant Surprise Party.

Friday evening when Mrs. Alice Mains and Miss Irene Mains returned from the street fair at Adrian they found their neighbors had arranged a surprise in their honor. When they entered the house they found it filled with friends and they were greeted by the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march in honor of Miss Irene's approaching marriage to Mr. H. F. Gardner of San Francisco, Cal.

The bride to be was ushered to a chair which had been tastefully decorated in white and presented with many useful gifts from her friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Mains, who was to leave soon for Coldwater, Mich., was presented with a beautiful wish bone pin.

After the gifts had been duly admired there was another surprise when supper was announced.

After supper an enjoyable hour was spent in conversation and listening to music.

Two Bates County Boys to State Fair.

Some time ago the board of directors of the state fair announced that they would hold an agricultural school at the fair this year and that they would pay the expenses of two boys from each county in the state for one week at Sedalia. Last week A. C. Moreland, County Superintendent of Schools, conducted an examination to determine who would go. There were seven applicants and Eugene Hartlich, who lives southwest of town and Francis Godwin of near Urich, were declared the winners. The Butler Commercial Club pays their expenses to and from Sedalia.
